Last Friday, Nam and his sister Lan went to the night market in Brightport with their grandfather. The market opens at six o'clock and it is next to the river. First, they bought hot corn because they were hungry. Then Lan saw a stall with paper lanterns. She chose a yellow one in the shape of a star. Nam wanted to buy a kite, but it was too expensive, so Grandpa bought him a small wooden boat instead. At nine o'clock it started to rain, and everyone ran under the big trees. "This is the best market in the world!" said Nam.
